Together We Art

architect of one's life

Artists, architects, and visionaries unite at Cromwell Place, Thursday 16 November 2023 from 18:30, to explore the transformative power of art and architecture.

This one-of-a-kind event will take place at Cromwell Place, at the Lavery Studio, surrounded by art work which have been donated by a consortium of international established and emerging artists and architects to benefit LP4Y. The fundraising group exhibition. "Together we Art: Architecture of One's Life" is about how art and architecture intersect to create a powerful narrative of transformation, inclusivity, and enlightenment.

This Panel discussion will bring together four distinguished personalities, Editorial Director Max Fraser and internationally celebrated Artist LionHeart, along with Selasi Setufe MBE and LP4Y Founder Laure Delaporte. They will share their personal insights on how artists and architects possess unique abilities to shape environments, fostering change and inclusivity within our society.

This conversation transcends the boundaries of mere design and aesthetics. It delves into the profound impact of art and architecture on our lives and perspectives, offering fresh angles of perception, challenging conventional norms, and unlocking doors to unprecedented opportunities. Art and architecture collaboratively shape lives, enabling us to perceive individuals in a new light, empowering them to develop their potential, enhance their confidence, and find meaningful purpose.

As Dezeen Editorial Director, Max Fraser is a leading voice in the world of design and architecture. He underscores our role in shaping the built environment and harnessing creativity to continuously reinvent ourselves for a brighter future.

Internationally celebrated artist LionHeart will explore the power of art and architecture to transcend boundaries, empowering individuals to embrace their potential and fostering inclusivity and connection.

With an interest in exploring socially responsive approaches to design, architecture and placemaking, Selasi Setufe MBE will share innovative solution for inclusivity in the built environment.

Laure Delaporte, LP4Y's founder, will bring a unique perspective from her hands-on experience with young individuals. She will share inspiring stories and highlight the importance of art in transforming lives.

The event echoes the mission of LP4Y (Life Project 4 Youth) and the "Together We Art – Architect of one's life" exhibition, which showcases the potential of art and architecture to drive positive societal change.
